This is a guide to the MLA (Modern Language Association) referencing system for XJTLU students. However, please always refer to your module handbook or any specifications for further guidance, as your lecturers/tutors may prefer a different style of referencing.

Introduction:

This guide gives advice on referencing using the MLA system. This is the preferred referencing system for some of the departments at Xi'an Jiaotong-Liverpool University. There are numerous different types of referencing systems available, and most style guides fall into two commonly used systems: 1) author-date system (Harvard, APA) and 2) numeric system (Vancouver, MLA). To be noted, MLA is an author-page style which is not that typical. In MLA style, referencing is done by using parenthetical citation which requires that any source information that you provide in-text must correspond to the source information on the Works Cited page. Before writing your reference list, check with your lecturer or supervisor for the bibliographic style preferred. There may be differences in the style recommended by the Department. This guide suggests a style which aligns with the MLA Handbook for Writers of Research Papers (8th ed.).

Plagiarism:

When writing assignments, you must acknowledge the source of your ideas and quotes in sufficient detail so that readers can locate the item. Referencing is important to avoid plagiarism, to verify quotations and to enable readers to follow up what you have written and locate the cited work. Plagiarism is defined by Xi'an Jiaotong-Liverpool University Student Regulations as “Reproducing material from other works or a paraphrase of such material without acknowledgement”. For more information on how to avoid plagiarism please refer to Department of Registry.

Collecting and organizing references:
It is often not easy (or possible) to retrieve sources after you have written your text. For this reason, it is best to write down all the citation details of a source as you use it, and to compile a reference list at the end of the document that includes full details of all references cited. Bibliographic software, such as EndNote, RefWorks, or Zotero, will help you organize your references according to different citation systems and to add the citations to your text.

Two parts in MLA System:

In-text citations: References need not be cited in the text. When they are, it means citing in the text of your work: this means acknowledging, within your text, the sources that you have used.

- In MLA system, the author's last name and the page number(s) (or volume number(s), chapter number(s), part number(s), e.g., vol. 3, ch. 4, par. 5) from which the quotation or paraphrase is taken must appear in the text. The author’s name may appear either in the sentence or in the parentheses following the quotation or paraphrase, but the page number(s) should always appear in the parentheses.
- For a source by a corporate author, use the name of the corporation followed by the page number for the in-text citation. You should also use abbreviations where appropriate.
- If there is no known author for a source, use a shortened title of the work instead of an author name, followed by a page number. Place the title in quotation marks if it’s a short work (e.g., an article) or italicise it if it’s a longer work (e.g., plays, books, television shows, entire Web sites).
- If two authors have the same surname, use their first initial (e.g., A. Smith, R. Smith).
- To cite non-print or Internet sources for which there are no page numbers, no number should be given in the in-text citation. Do not count unnumbered paragraphs or other parts.

Works Cited (excluding bibliographic citations)/ Works Consulted (including bibliographic citations): there you present the details of the sources you have used. In MLA system, you should list all the entries in the Works Cited page which correspond to the works cited in the main text.

- Format
  - You should place a separate page at the end of your research paper with the heading Works Cited centred in the page. It should have the same one-inch margins and last name, page number header as the rest of your paper.
  - Double space the entire list, but do not skip spaces between citation entries.
  - Indent all lines of citations other than the first line by 0.5 inches from the left margin.
  - Provide page numbers when needed, for example, when you are citing journal articles (e.g., 252-55). If the document has no page numbers, part numbers like chapters should be cited.
  - Since online works typically can be changed or removed at any time, the date on which you accessed online material is often an important indicator of the version you consulted.
  - In digital formats URLs may be clickable, connecting your reader directly to your sources. Therefore, the inclusion of URLs is recommended in... the works-cited list, but if your instructor prefers that you not include them, follow his or her directions.

✓ If you’re citing an article or a publication that was originally published in print format but that you retrieved from an online database, you should type the online database name in italics.

• List Order
✓ Alphabetize the list by authors’ last names. If an entry has no author, alphabetize by the title, ignoring any initial A, An, or The.

• Authors and Editors
✓ Reverse the name (e.g., Andrews, Richard) of the author/editor. If there are multiple authors or editors, only reverse the name of the first (e.g., Andrews, Richard and Vicki Wienand).
✓ Present the names as given in the work you are citing. Use the full name rather than initials if full name is listed.

• Title
✓ Capitalise each word in the title, including those that follow hyphens in compound terms (e.g., Cross-Cultural), but do not capitalise articles (e.g., the, an, a), prepositions, or conjunctions unless one is the first word of the title or subtitle.

• Publisher’s Name & Place of Publication
✓ Omit articles (e.g., the) and business abbreviations (e.g., Co. and Ltd.).
✓ If there is no publisher or no place of publication provided, supply as much of the missing information as you can, enclosing it in square brackets to show that it did not come from the source (e.g., [circa 2008], [2008?] and The Star-Ledger [Newark]).
✓ For a university press, abbreviate “university press” as “UP” (e.g., Oxford UP, U of Chicago P).
✓ If multiple cities (places of publication) are provided, use the first.
✓ Add an abbreviation of the country or province name if the name of the city of publication is outside of the United States and may be ambiguous or unfamiliar to readers.

NOTE:
Some of the examples are created for illustration purpose only.

For more details regarding the referencing rules and abbreviations, please refer to the MLA Handbook for Writers of Research Papers (8th ed.).

DIRECT QUOTATIONS

A direct quotation is quoted directly word by word from another author’s work, or from your own previously-published work.

If you have directly quoted words from a source (in inverted commas, or in an indented paragraph), you have to format the quotation in your text. There are different requirements for quoting prose, poetry, drama, Ellipsis, etc. You can find the detailed information in the MLA Handbook for Writers of Research Papers (8th ed.).

FURTHER HELP AND CONTACTS

If you have any difficulties using any of the reference schemes mentioned above, or any other referencing format which you have been asked to use by your instructors, please contact your librarian (https://libguides.lib.xjtlu.edu.cn/c.php?g=655374). Remember, it is always helpful to consult the person for whom you are writing, whether it is a tutor or an editor, as to which style of referencing they want you to use.

Advice on creating links to e-resources in the bibliography

The following notes provide some general tips on obtaining a direct link to e-resources.

The most important thing is to make the bibliography functional. If the resource is part of an online collection subscribed by Xi’an Jiaotong-Liverpool University, it can be directly accessed on campus or accessed via VPN when off-campus. The link you create should be stable and accessible to the audience if they access the item on any University campus which has a subscription for the item. They may also be able to access the resource off-campus.

You should take care when simply copying and pasting the URL from the address bar of your Web browser. If the website you are using is available via public WWW pages then you can probably use the URL of the resource you are viewing. If the site is a subscribed collection then you will probably not be able to copy and paste the URL, since the URL may contain ‘session’ information and may be invalid when used later. Many systems such as Discover provide tools to create a stable link to individual e-resources.

If you conduct a search in Discover and choose one of the references to view the Detailed Record, the page will be shown as the first screenshot here. The URL in Web browser is invalid for you to cite. Discover enable you to get the stable link via ‘permalink’ function in the Tools panel. After you click ‘permalink’, you will be directed to a new page with a stable link which is derived from the website of the e-journal collection (see the second screenshot).
